THE MANAGER

Good afternoon everyone and welcome to the Reebok Stadium.

Right now we find ourselves in a position which we did not anticipate at the start of the season, though we accept that we have just been through the hardest sequence of games we will encounter in our entire season.

We have worked hard in training with the players available to us throughout the international break. We hope that, together with our players returning from international duty, that the hard work we have put in will pay off and that we can really kick-start our season today.

Our most recent outing at Blackburn was obviously very disappointing. When we look at that scoreline and the scoreline away at Nottingham Forest, it is hard to believe that those are the only times since we have been in charge at the club that we have lost by more than the odd goal.

Nevertheless, we find ourselves in this situation and we all need to pull together, staff, players and supporters, in order to start climbing the league table from today.

This afternoon we welcome all from Leeds United to the Reebok. We know they will make things difficult for us and will be backed a large travelling support.

I was fortunate enough to play for Leeds on loan and have some great memories from my time there. Their support, both home and away, is a reminder to us what it can do for a club.

Our support has too been fantastic, and you played a significant role in our run of form that saw us climb the league table and narrowly miss out on the play-offs last season. We know we are more than capable of replicating that and our home form will of course prove key.

Hopefully these two games will be the start of yet another good run of home form here at the Reebok and that we can send you all home happy.

Enjoy the game.

THE SKIPPER

Good afternoon and welcome to the Reebok Stadium for our game against Leeds United.

First of all, all the lads where bitterly disappointed after the game at Blackburn Rovers. As a group we know we should be putting in better performances and as players we didn't play our part.

We were straight back into training on the Monday after the Blackburn game and we went back to basics in order to get things rights.

We have analysed what went wrong at Ewood Park two weeks ago but that is in the past and we are now looking forward to three very important games in the next seven days, starting today against Leeds United.

Our batteries are recharged and we are ready to go again. Considering our start to the season, today is a huge match and an important week for the club.

We have something to fight for and if we can take a good number of points away from our next three matches, it will be a positive week.

We are not concentrating on anything else apart from today's game against Leeds United and winning our first three points of the season. It will be a difficult game as Leeds are a good side and they have made a promising start, but on our day we are a match for anybody.

As I have said in my previous columns so far this season, we need the supporters to stay behind the team. We know we should be playing better and we want to reward them by winning every single game that we play.

Thanks for your continued support and enjoy the game.

ROBERT HALL INTERVIEW

ONE ON ONE

WITH ROBERT HALL

At the age of just 19, Rob Hall is a player with the world at his feet following his summer move from West Ham United.

Having enjoyed the final two months of last season on loan at the Reebok, Hall's potential persuaded boss Dougie Freedman to sign the teenager on a permanent contract during the summer months.

It was a move the winger was pleased to make, even though he admitted in his first exclusive interview with the matchday programme that it was difficult to leave his London roots and move to the North West.

"It was an opportunity I couldn't refuse to turn down," explained the winger. "The hardest thing for me was leaving West Ham United but for me to progress it was the right time for me to move.

"I've got a massive opportunity here, at a massive club with a great manager and a great crop of players.

"I want West Ham to do well and I wish the club all the success in the future, but I am now a Bolton player and I want to play my part in helping the club climb the league table."

After growing up surrounded by football – his father and older brother both regularly played the game themselves – Hall kicked off his career with his local side Elsmere Town in Buckinghamshire before being picked up by the Hammers as an eight-year-old.

From thereon in, it was full steam ahead for the Aylesbury born youngster as he rose up through the West Ham academy set-up, developing a reputation as a fast-paced centre forward – something that remained with him until shortly before being awarded his professional contract.

"At first I wanted to be a striker, like every young player wanted to be," Hall admitted. "I played in that position until I was 17 but Tony Carr, the academy director at West Ham, said I wasn't big enough to be a striker so he put me on the wing instead.

"I wasn't too pleased with the decision but all I wanted to do was play football and I was grateful to be out on the pitch.

"In the end though it worked out for me because I am now playing professionally and I am enjoying my football."

Now established as a wide player, Hall admits he has focused his game on a number of different players, including a 39-year-old Premier League champion down the M61.

He continued: "Obviously Ryan Giggs is a great role model for any winger or footballer for that matter.

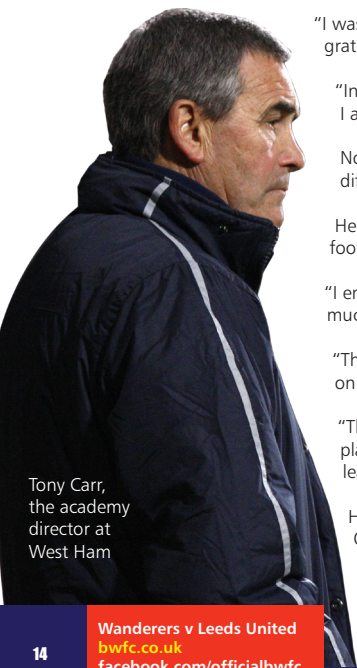

"I enjoy watching the likes of Cristiano Ronaldo, Lionel Messi and Neymar and the latter isn't much older than me.

"They are a pleasure to watch, but I also like David Silva's style of play who enjoys getting on the ball but maybe not as quick as the other three.

"Their vision is amazing and they are one step ahead of everybody else, so those types of players I enjoy watching and it is all about trying to mould all of those skills into one and learn as much as you can."

Having impressed on the pitch, Hall signed on the dotted line with the Hammers in October 2010 and set about proving his worth to then-manager Avram Grant.

Unfortunately for the academy graduate, the club's eventual relegation in May 2011 restricted his involvement until the following campaign where he made a handful of senior appearances.

West Ham

I now have a massive opportunity at Bolton.

To be given the number 11 shirt
after Ricardo
Gardner had it is a massive

With West Ham intent on securing an immediate return to the top flight and a number of experienced players joining the ranks including former Wanderers winger Matt Taylor, Hall found his chances limited at the Boleyn Ground.

However, Hall's potential was still there for all Hammers fans to see as he secured the club's Academy Player of the Year and was featuring on a regular basis for England's youth teams.

Loan spells with Oxford United, Milton Keynes Dons and Birmingham City followed before his short stint at the Reebok earlier this year, making one first team appearance against Blackpool on the final day of the season.

Although he was undoubtedly giving the West Ham management team food for thought, with a hunger to play regularly and his contract set to expire, Hall made the decision to move onto pastures new when Wanderers came calling.

"The lads here as well are great - the Manchester boys like Chris Eagles and Tyrone Mears who travel in everyday always offer me lifts if I need them.

"They're very close to me at the moment - even the other lads like Darren Pratley, Zat Knight, Jermaine Beckford and Craig Davies - I could say loads of names, but they have all helped me settle in to life at Bolton Wanderers.

"They've made it so easy for me, so all I need to worry about is what I do on the pitch and that's how I can repay them."

Having been handed the club's infamous number eleven shirt on his arrival at the club, the winger admitted that he is relishing stepping into such a role.

"I love it, to be given that shirt number, especially, after Ricardo Gardner had it, I think that's a massive honour to try and be a Bolton number 11.

"It will be hard obviously because he was a great player, but if I can be just a half of what he was here, then I'll be very happy."

Alongside developing his ability gaining playing time with his club sides, Hall has been making a name for himself on the international scene with England's youth set-up, originally being introduced in to the fold at Under 17 level.

Despite enjoying the luxury of a free summer after missing out on a place in the Under 20 squad for the World Cup in Tunisia, the 19-year-old admitted that his experiences with the youngsters will stand him in good stead in his bid to secure a starting berth for Wanderers.

"It's a case of taking all that experience and putting it into one, on the game day and trying to do what's best for yourself and your team," said Hall, who scored his first goal for the club against Shrewsbury Town last month.

"Our aim is to obviously win every game that we play and I think with the lads we've got, we're more than capable.

"You don't know what the days are going to bring you and you don't know what's round the corner, but we can only prepare for the test that we get given.

"We've got a great group of lads so I think if we get it together, we can go a long way. It will be a difficult challenge against Leeds United this afternoon but we are confident we can collect all three points."

Hall was awarded his professional contract in October 2011 after a decade in the Hammers' academy.

The winger was born in Aylesbury, Buckinghamshire on 20th October 1993.

The 19-year-old was handed the number eleven on his arrival at the club in the summer which had previously been worn by Wanderers' legend Ricardo Gardner.

MATCHACTION

v TRANMERE

Wanderers exited the Capital One Cup following a 4-2 penalty shoot-out defeat at the hands of Tranmere Rovers.

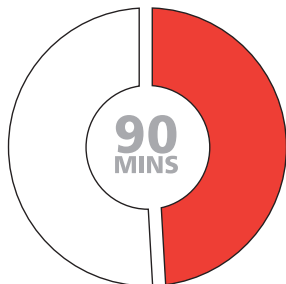

The game finished 1-1 at the end of extra time after Jermaine Beckford's first goal for the club cancelled out Cole Stockton's opener at Prenton Park. The hosts went on to convert their first four penalties and seal their place in the third round against Premier League outfit Stoke City.

Bolton, playing in their bright away strip for the first time, made a bright start on the Wirral but were hit by a Tranmere sucker punch on the stroke of half time as Stockton capitalised on a mistake at the back to curl the ball home.

Wanderers didn't let their heads slip in the second period as manager Dougie Freedman introduced both Beckford and Andre Moritz and the changes paid dividends with the duo combining to bring the score level after some superb build-up play.

From thereon in it seemed likely that it would be Wanderers who would snatch the winner, with Tom Eaves coming close on several occasions, however the tie went to extra time.

With no side able to find the winner in the additional 30 minutes, the game went to penalties with Moritz and Alex Baptiste missing their respective penalties as Bolton were knocked out for the second consecutive season against League One opposition.

v ROVERS

A brace from Jordan Rhodes and a goal apiece for David Dunn and Corey Evans meant that Wanderers slipped to a 4-1 defeat at Ewood Park.

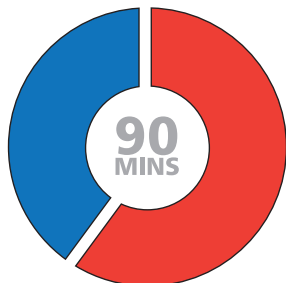

With the hosts having raced into a two goal lead, Wanderers full back Alex Baptiste gave the visitors hope on the stroke of half time as he halved the deficit, but Rovers extended their lead after the restart to ensure all three points.

The Whites had started brightly with Jermaine Beckford forcing Blackburn keeper Jake Kean into a smart save inside the opening quarter of the game, but the hosts soon hit back with two goals in as many minutes from a fine individual effort from Rovers veteran Dunn and a stereotypical finish from Scotland international Rhodes.

Rovers continued to pile the pressure on before the half time whistle, but against the run of play the visitors responded through full back and former Blackpool man Baptiste, as the defender hit a thunderous strike beyond Kean.

Bolton began the second period well and went within inches of drawing the score back level shortly after the restart as David Ngog's shot was cleared off the line by Blackburn's on loan Chelsea defender Todd Kane.

However Wanderers' pressure couldn't find a second and the hosts went on to score a further two goals courtesy of a stunning volley from Evans and a tap in from Rhodes as Rovers claimed the bragging rights at Ewood Park.

DEVELOPMENT SQUAD

A penalty apiece ensured that Wanderers' Under 21 side secured a hard earned point against Middlesbrough with a 1-1 draw at the Reebok Stadium earlier this month.

Sanmi Odelusi had opened the scoring shortly after half time from the spot, but the Whites were denied their first victory of the season as the visitors were awarded a penalty of their own late on in the game which Ben Gibson duly converted.

Wanderers had started the game brightly, Tom Eaves dragging his shot just wide inside the opening stages of the clash and announcing his arrival to the Middlesbrough defence with a number of welltimed runs into the area.

A goal looked to be imminent in the 19th minute as Odelusi played the ball into the path of the advancing Andy Kellett who whipped in a lethal cross, but the Boro defence were quick to clear the ball behind for a corner.

Tom Youngs did have the ball in the back of the net soon after as he powered past a hoard of Middlesbrough defenders, but the centre forward was deemed to be marginally offside.

Having been a thorn in Boro's side all evening, Odelusi went within inches of handing the Whites the lead on the stroke of half time as he hit a half volley from just outside the area, but the winger's shot crashed against the post with the keeper beaten.

With Middlesbrough struggling to gain a foothold in the game, it seemed only a matter of time before Wanderers' dominance paid dividends and Odelusi duly obliged in the 51st minute as he broke free of the Boro defence, only to be brought down by Leutwiler in the area.

Having won the spot kick, the winger then proceeded to calmly convert the penalty to hand Bolton a deserved lead.

Despite finding themselves with more possession in the second period than they had in the first, the visitors were still struggling to break down a resilient Wanderers' backline who were dealing with any pressure with apparent ease.

Having just been introduced into the fold, Wilson Kneeshaw almost made an immediate impact as Jordan Jones played the ball into the feet of the unmarked youngster, but Lonergan did well to deny him from close range.

As the clock ran down, the visitors threw everything forward in search of a goal and were given the opportunity to equalise in the 83rd minute after Vela fouled Luke Williams in the area.

Despite the protestations of the Wanderers' number six, the referee was unmoved and Gibson converted the spot kick to bring Boro level.

Both sides enjoyed opportunities to snatch a winning goal as the game entered its final stages, but the clash ended all square.

Wanderers' U21s are next in action on Monday night when they face neighbours Manchester United. Further details for the game can be found on the club website.

Wanderers: Lonergan, White, Kellett, Threlkeld, Bolger, Vela, Lester (Iliev, 79), Gregus, Eaves, Youngs (Wilkinson, 65), Odelusi

UNDER18's

Wanderers' youth team coach David Lee believes that the club's Under 18s will soon be firing on all cylinders following an intensive training regime over the international break.

The Baby Whites, who were in action away at Tottenham Hotspur this morning, slipped to three consecutive defeats inside the opening month of the campaign, despite a number of spirited performances.

Although Lee admitted that his side haven't started the season as well as he would have hoped, he has every faith that the club's youngsters will start to pick up the results that their determination deserves if they continue to work hard on the training pitch.

"We look at the results from a player's perspective and we have been disappointed with the actual results, but what has been good is the individual performances and the progression of the players," he explained.

"Whether you win, lose or draw, there are always improvements to be made by the players and whilst we've had the international break, we've taken advantage of the extra training opportunities and tried to put right or improve one or two of the structural process of the team as individuals, player specifics and where they need to be in possession or out of possession.

"The time has been used efficiently over the break and hopefully during the next few games, it will come to fruition of how they've adapted and learnt the situations that they are put in during games and put them into practice, then from a player's perspective hopefully the results will get better and from a coach's perspective, the individual development of the players will improve."

Prior to the international break, the team slipped to a 3-2 defeat at the hands of Aston Villa at Lostock after taking an early lead in the clash. Despite the disappointing result however, Lee revealed that the game was imperative in the development of his players.

"It's a good learning curve for them," said the former Wanderers midfielder. "They hadn't played against Aston Villa as a club for a number of years now so you do come up against a number of different oppositions, different tactics, different styles of play, and we showed good character, taking the lead and conceding three goals, but then bouncing back.

"We created a lot of opportunities on the day and just didn't score, but there is the other side of it where if you concede goals then you don't deserve to win games, but that is something that we've worked on with the defensive shape and unit work so hopefully it will get better as the season progresses."

With a number of youngsters forcing their way into Dougie Freedman's plans in the latter stages of last season and the opening weeks of the current campaign, Lee is confident that the club will have many more options available from a youth perspective in the near future.

"All the first years that have come in have all got potential, but we're definitely looking towards many of the second year players like Tom Walker, Liam Gibson and James Ball who have had a year in the football club and now have that experience."

NEVER FORGOTTEN

Last Sunday, it would have been the 44th birthday of former Bolton Wanderers and Leeds United midfielder Gary Speed.

Speed, who played over 400 games combined for both clubs, sadly passed away in November 2011, but will always be remembered at the Reebok Stadium and Elland Road for his efforts both on and off the pitch.

CHAPLAIN'S VIEW

BEYOND THE 90

"I've got the ball now" – The Lofthouse Statue

Club chaplain Phil Mason looks back on the memorable event of the Nat Lofthouse Statue being unveiled and explains how fans can now experience the 18 month journey the statue made before arriving at the Reebok Stadium.

On Saturday 24th August 2013, the weekend before what would have been Nat Lofthouse's 88th birthday, we unveiled a lasting tribute to Nat with a statue of him erected outside the Reebok Stadium.

It was a great celebration on the day and I have been delighted by the response from everyone regarding this fitting tribute.

This last 18 months has been quite a journey to get to the unveiling of the statue itself. That journey has now been captured in a book which is now on sale.

The book – titled "I've got the ball now" – The Lofthouse Statue" produced and edited by Johnny Miller takes you behind the scenes and through very powerful images shows you how the great bronze structure was created by Sean Hedges-Quinn, the award winning sculptor.

The book with the forward by Eddie Davies, the Club owner, also features a detailed history of Nat himself by Mark Yesilevskiy and Matilda Hankinson entitled The Lion of Vienna, which has been previously published on The Lion of Vienna Suite website.

The publication is a fitting tribute to Nat and the creation of the statue and can be exclusively purchased from our own store at Bolton Central.

Retailing at £9.99, the proceeds from the sale of the book are going towards the Nat Lofthouse Memorial fund that has paid for the creation of the statue and surround memorial walkway. Hedges-Quinn will be available before and after the game to sign copies.

Fans will be able to purchase the book in the Fan Zone and Corporate areas. After today's final whistle, the publication will be on sale at Bolton Central.

Bolton Wanderers are saddened to hear of the death of former player Brian Smith. After a short illness Brian passed away two weeks ago, aged 57.

Bolton-born Smith was part of the successful squad of the late 1970s, after making his senior debut for the club in 1974. He initially provided reliable cover to John Byrom, though injury limited his appearances in the promotion-winning season of 1977/78.

The following campaign he established himself as a key member of the squad in the first division, making a total of 21 appearances. He featured in a famous 2-1 victory against Manchester United at Old Trafford in April of 1979.

In total Smith made 57 appearances in all competitions for the club, netting four goals. Bolton Wanderers' thoughts and well wishes are with Brian's family and friends at this difficult time. Brian's funeral will be held on Tuesday at Carleton Crematorium.

#WEAREBOLTON

In this season's programme we'll be giving you, our fans, the opportunity to tell us why you are a Bolton Wanderers supporter in our unique feature, #WeAreBolton.

Fans from around the world are encouraged to submit their BWFC memories from down the years that helped shape them into the fan they are today.

Ahead of this afternoon's clash against Leeds United, Louise Harvey, who lives at the opposite end of the country explains why she supports the Whites, even though she is located 200 miles away from the Reebok Stadium.

Name: Louise Harvey

Age: 40

Location: Hampshire

Why are you a Bolton Wanderers supporter?

I became a Wanderers fan unexpectedly in 1993 and my first game was against Portsmouth later that year.

My uncle was an avid Bolton Wanderers supporter and he was travelling down to Fratton Park for the game.

I live only ten miles away from Portsmouth's stadium so he asked me to tag along so we could get see one another but at the time I couldn't have thought of a worse place to see him.

The thought of interacting at a football match didn't appeal to me in the slightest but after the final whistle my mind had completely changed.

I enjoyed the whole atmosphere from the singing to the friendly banter between the supporters, and since that day I have been an avid Bolton Wanderers supporter.

I started going to matches, with Southampton away being the closest for me. A few funny incidents happened to me at the Saints' old stadium including running into the side of the team bus whilst waving to Alan Thompson. I received a nasty bump to my head but I carried on like nothing had happened.

What are your memories of supporting Bolton?

To say I experienced the 1995 Play-Off final against Reading is an absolute honour. I remember being late for work but arrived on my bike with the Wembley flag still in hand.

I have been fortunate enough to go to all the Play-Off games, the League Cup final and our trips abroad in the UEFA Cup to places like Portugal, Munich and Madrid. The latter was a complete nightmare with my passport being stolen.

However Munich was the best experience of them all, singing Kevin Davies' name all the way through and watching the Whites play in a spectacular stadium in Germany.

I have raised my two boys to be Wanderers fans, much to the disgust of my husband who is a die hard Portsmouth supporter.

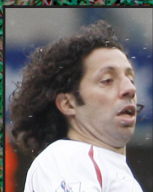

We have travelled around the country and a couple of supporters have called me a true dedicated Wanderer which means so much to me!

VISITORS

Yorkshire heavyweights Leeds United turned to former Reading boss Brian McDermott at the back end of last season to steer their ship towards the Premier League.

United were in contention for a place in the Play-Offs in 2012/13, but a poor run of eight games without a win in March ended their top six hopes, with former boss Neil Warnock consequently leaving following a 2-1 defeat at home against Derby County.

Now with a fresh impetus at the club, United have enjoyed a steady start to the new season, and McDermott certainly has a proven track record in the second tier, winning the league title with his former employers two seasons ago.

During the close season, no fewer than nine players went through the exit door at Elland Road as McDermott looked to improve on their 13th place finish.

The likes of Steve Morison and Davide Somma have both departed as McDermott began rebuilding his squad for the 2013/14 campaign.

Part of his plans involved having a familiar face alongside him as he drafted in Irish centre forward Noel Hunt from Reading.

In addition to Hunt's signature, Leeds have signed Oldham Athletic's giant striker Matt Smith, Manchester United youngster Scott Wootton and Crewe Alexandra's creative midfielder Luke Murphy.

The latter, aged 23, joins a long list of Crewe academy graduates that have swapped the Alexandra Stadium for a team higher up the divisions and Murphy made a perfect start with his new club by scoring on his league debut against Brighton.

Another boost for the Leeds United manager was tying down in-form striker Ross McCormack to a new contract, after heavy speculation linking the former Cardiff City man with a move to Championship rivals Middlesbrough.

With a new feel to the Elland Road dressing room, the club will be looking to end their ten year exile from the Premier League after a topsy turvy decade in the Football League with spells in both the Championship and League One.

This is the club's fourth consecutive season in the second tier of English football and they have started the campaign well with two wins, two draws and one defeat.

The weekend before the international break, United played host to unbeaten Queens Park Rangers at Elland Road in front of the Sky cameras, with the visitors running out 1-0 winners courtesy of Clint Hill's second half strike.

Away from the Sky Bet Championship, McDermott's men are also in the third round of the Capital One Cup, beating Chesterfield and Doncaster so far, with a trip to Premier League outfit Newcastle United coming up later this month.

STAR MAN

Wanderers' matchday programme have identified Leeds United striker Ross McCormack as the player to be wary of ahead of today's Sky Bet Championship game at the Reebok Stadium.

The 27-year-old Scotland centre forward was linked with a move away from Elland Road during the summer months.

However, McCormack quashed those rumours by penning a new four year contract at the club three days before the summer transfer window slammed shut.

Ready to help Leeds United win promotion to the Premier League, McCormack has netted four times already this season, including a second half equaliser in the Yorkshire derby against Sheffield Wednesday last month.

United's number 44 joined the club in 2010 from Welsh outfit Cardiff City after starting his career in his homeland with Rangers.

Scoring 25 goals in 53 league starts for City, McCormack was persuaded to swap England for Wales, with Leeds capturing the Glaswegian's signature on deadline day three years ago.

However, his start to life at Elland Road was disrupted through injury, with his first strike coming in April 2011 when he scored the only goal of the game against Burnley.

The goal against the Clarets gave McCormack the boost he needed, and in his next game for the club, he hit another crucial goal in a 2-1 victory over Queens Park Rangers

THE BOSS

Born in Slough, Brian McDermott played for a host of clubs during his playing days including Fulham, Arsenal, Cardiff City and Swedish club IFK Norrköping, where he was named as their Player of the Year.

Finishing his playing career at non-league outfit Slough Town in 1995, the current Leeds United boss took charge of the Berkshire side and enjoyed three successful years in the lower reaches of English football.

A brief spell in charge of Woking followed before McDermott was handed a job at Reading, working as the club's chief scout under Alan Pardew.

The former England U18 international held the position for nine years, but following Brendan Rodgers' departure, who was in charge at the time, McDermott was installed as manager at the Madjeski Stadium in 2009.

In his first season in charge of the club, he led Reading to the quarter finals of the FA Cup for the first time in 83 years which included dumping out seven time winners Liverpool.

It was a case of déjà vu for the Royals when McDermott's men repeated the feat by knocking out Liverpool's near neighbours Everton in the same competition in March 2011.

Away from the FA Cup however, Reading suffered heartache in the league as they were beaten by Swansea City in the Championship Play-Off final as they targeted a return to the Premier League.

Twelve months later though, the dismay of a Wembley defeat was soon forgotten as Reading were promoted to the top flight as Champions.

LEEDS: THE SQUAD

PADDY KENNY

The 35 year-old is an experienced goalkeeper in the Football League having played for Bury, Queens Park Rangers and notably Sheffield United. Kenny has twice gained promotion to the Premier League, once with former United manager Neil Warnock at the Blades, and has made seven appearances for Republic of Ireland at international level. Last season, he kept 11 clean sheets in 47 appearances for Leeds.

SAM BYRAM

A graduate from the club's youth academy, the 19 year-old full back made a clean sweep as United's Players' Player, Player & Young Player of the Year in his first full season as a professional. He made 44 appearances in all competitions, scoring four goals, with his strike against Oxford United in the League Cup being nominated for the Football League Goal of the Season award.

TOM LEES

The defender joined Leeds as an eight-year-old and developed an admiration for legendary United defender Lucas Radebe. The 22-year-old signed a professional contract at Elland Road in 2009, and went on to enjoy loans spells with North West duo Accrington Stanley and Bury. Last season, Lees broke into the first team at Elland Road and made 49 appearances in all competitions, scoring twice.

JASON PEARCE

A 25-year-old centre back, Pearce began his career at Portsmouth before a four-year spell with Bournemouth where he made 162 appearances. Pearce re-joined Pompey for a year in 2011, before moving to Leeds United in 2012.

STEPHEN WARNOCK

Former Bolton Wanderers loan man Warnock joined Leeds United shortly after his spell at the Reebok Stadium. The left back, who started his career at Premier League leaders Liverpool, has also represented Bradford City, Coventry City, Blackburn Rovers and Aston Villa.

The 31-year-old made 32 appearances for United last season, scoring just the one goal.

RODOLPH AUSTIN

Jamaican international Austin, nicknamed 'Beast' during his time in Norway at former employers SK Brann, joined United last summer. The 27-year old combative midfielder has scored four times since his arrival in Yorkshire and made a total of 33 appearances last season in the Championship.

LEEDS: THESQUAD

PAUL GREEN

The 29-year-old arrived at Elland Road from Derby County in 2012. Last season, Green made 36 appearances in all competitions for United, scoring four goals in the process. He has been a regular starter for Brian McDermott's side so far this season, and has also been capped 17 times for the Republic of Ireland, notching a solitary goal for his national side.

LUKE MURPHY

Signed from Crewe Alexandra over the summer, the 23-year-old put pen to paper on a three-year contract at Elland Road as United saw off a number of clubs chasing the creative midfielder's signature. After making over 150 appearances in five years with the League One outfit, Murphy started life at his new club perfectly by scoring on his debut against Brighton.

EL-HADJI DIOUF

Another former Wanderer making his return to the Reebok, Diouf quickly became a fans favourite during his time at the club, but he will be focused on picking up three points for his current employers this afternoon. The Senegalese international, who once cost Liverpool £10m, made over 100 appearances for Bolton, scoring 21 goals.

MICHAEL TONGE

The 30-year-old played for Sheffield United, Stoke City, Preston North End, Derby County and Barnsley before joining Leeds United on a permanent basis in January this year. Tonge was on loan at Elland Road last season before the New Year, making 21 appearances for United in total, playing under both former manager Neil Warnock and now Brian McDermott.

NOEL HUNT

Formerly of Championship rivals Reading, the Irishman began his career at Shamrock Rovers, although he spent his best years at the Madejski Stadium after joining his brother Stephen at the Berkshire outfit. Noel, who is yet to get off the mark in Leeds colours, has been reunited with his former boss at Reading and has found himself a regular starter.

LUKE VARNEY

The 30-year-old is an experienced striker in the Football League having played for Crewe Alexandra, Charlton Athletic, Derby County, Sheffield Wednesday, Blackpool, Portsmouth and now Leeds United. His goals to game record has never been prolific, and he scored just six in 39 appearances for United last season, although he has been a regular starter under Brian McDermott.

HISTORY

Leeds United are one of English football's sleeping giants, having enjoyed many successes before the turn of the millennium.

Founded in 1919, United are a reformation of the old Leeds City FC. They originally entered the Midland League, taking the place vacated by Leeds City reserves.

The club was soon elected to the Football League in 1920, polling 31 votes to step into the Second Division.

The Yorkshire club spent the 1920s and early 30s up and down the divisions, with their main highlight being winning the second tier title for the first time in 1924 with 54 points.

Remaining in the top flight from 1932/33 up until the outbreak of the Second World War, United's reputation was beginning to grow in the world of football.

After the war, a legend was born when Welshman John Charles burst onto the scene. After nine successful years at Elland Road with nearly 300 appearances to his name, Charles joined Juventus for a then world record fee of £65,000 in 1962.

A year on and former Leeds player Don Revie was appointed as manager and he opted to change the club's kit colour to all-white.

The adjustment worked, as United won promotion to the First Division in the 1963-64 season and in his 13 years in charge at Elland Road, Revie won two First Division titles, the FA Cup, the League Cup, two Inter-Cities Fairs Cups and the Charity Shield.

During that time, Revie famously guided the Yorkshire outfit to the European Cup Winners' Cup final and a European Cup semi-final before leaving to manage England.

Brian Clough replaced Revie at the helm at Elland Road but his tenure lasted only 44 days, with Blackpool legend Jimmy Armfield stepping in and taking United to their first ever European Cup final, where they lost 2-0 against Bayern Munich.

The club were relegated to the Second Division in 1982 after all their successes, but Howard Wilkinson oversaw their promotion back to the First Division in 1990.

Leeds went on to win the top title for the third and final time in 1993 and through this the club built a youth academy which has produced a number of footballing talents.

In 1996, Wilkinson was succeeded by George Graham but two years later, Graham left to join Tottenham with David O'Leary coming in.

O'Leary carried on bringing the memorable days to Elland Road, as the club never finished outside the Premier League's top five during his time as manager and famously reached the Champions League semi-finals.

However, matters soon soured as Leeds were hit with financial problems and forced to sell a number of their stars including defender Rio Ferdinand to Manchester United.

The club suffered relegation to the Championship in 2004, and manager Kevin Blackwell was forced to rebuild the squad.

Leeds entered administration in 2007 and were relegated to League One, playing in the third tier for the first time. However, Simon Grayson led the Whites back to the Championship in 2011 and they are now looking to go one step further and return to the promise land.

Jermaine Beckford's Top Five Leeds United Goals

A prolific goal scorer with an impressive back catalogue of strikes throughout his ten year professional career, Jermaine Beckford undoubtedly made his name as a player during a four-year spell at Elland Road where he notched an impressive 129 goals in 291 appearances.

Having enjoyed such a successful spell as a player in Yorkshire, we take a look back at Beckford's most notable strikes for today's opponents.

1. Manchester United, FA Cup Third Round. January 2010 Despite the odds being stacked against Simon Grayson's men, Beckford hit the winner in a tense game at Old Trafford in the third round of the FA Cup back in January 2010. Although Leeds were then a League One side, Beckford rounded Manchester United keeper Tomas Kuszczak in the 19th minute of the game and fired home to secure the Whites' progression at the expense of the reigning Premier League champions.

all three points in a tight affair. Having latched onto a deflected shot, the striker fired past Forest goalkeeper Paul Smith to send the travelling fans into raptures.

3. Northampton Town, FA Cup Second Round. November 2008

Following an impressive inaugural season with the club which saw him score 20 goals in all competitions, Beckford continued his fine form into the 2008-09 campaign with a hat trick against Northampton Town. Beckford scored three excellent finishes, an angled drive into the far corner past beaten keeper Frank Fielding being the pick of them as United ran out 5-2 winners at the Sixfields Stadium.

4. Tottenham Hotspur, FA Cup Fourth Round, January

2010. Beckford continued his FA Cup goal scoring exploits from the previous round away at Manchester United as he dispatched a stoppage-time penalty to earn Leeds a replay against Premier League giants Tottenham Hotspur. Having been fouled by Spurs defender Michael Dawson, Beckford then kept his cool in the eighth minute of added time to smash the ball past Heurelho Gomes to the delight of the Leeds supporters in a pulsating 2-2 draw at White Hart Lane.

5. Bristol Rovers, League One. May 2010. Beckford's final and arguably most important Leeds goal came on his last appearance for the club in a League game at home to Bristol Rovers – a match which United needed to win in order to gain promotion. Despite falling behind, the Whites hit back in the second half with Beckford's 63th minute strike being enough to secure automatic promotion to the Championship alongside Norwich City – the perfect parting gift from the centre-forward who moved to Everton shortly after.

A FOOT IN BOTH CAMPS

A player who wrote his name into the history books of many clubs throughout his illustrious career, Frank Worthington is without doubt a figure who is fondly remembered by Bolton Wanderers and Leeds United fans alike.

Born and raised in Halifax, Worthington grew up surrounded by the beautiful game with his father Eric having spent time playing professionally for Manchester United after retiring from his role as a paratrooper for the military.

It was clear from the outset which path his career would take, with his first steps into the game being every youngster's dream as his childhood club Halifax Town offered him the opportunity to join their schoolboy team and the rest is history.

Quickly developing a reputation as a no-nonsense centre forward, Worthington went on to play for an astonishing 24 different clubs during his 26 year professional career before retiring at the age of 43 back where it all began – with his beloved hometown team.

Now residing in Huddersfield with his wife Carole, the striker admitted that he has fond memories of his time with both clubs, but Wanderers in particular will always hold a special place in his heart.

"It was a fantastic time to be involved when I joined, with all the famous games against Manchester United when we beat them twice and I got all the goals! It was an exceptional period of our careers."

After plying his trade with Huddersfield Town and Leicester City during the early 1970s, Worthington was offered to chance to link up with his former manager Ian Greaves when Wanderers came calling in 1977 – an opportunity that he just couldn't turn down.

"Having worked with him at Huddersfield, I knew how fantastic he was," the 64-year-old explained.

"As soon as I heard that Bolton were interested in me, I had to say yes.

"I already knew the area very well at the time too – I had family living in Bromley Cross and I used to visit them regularly, so it was great to have them around when I was playing here."

The move was to prove to be one of the most important of Worthington's career as he went on to become a cult hero at Burnden Park in his two seasons with the club, scoring one of the most iconic goals in Bolton history against Ipswich Town in 1979 – a strike which he believes hasn't been bettered by himself or anybody else since.

"That is definitely my favourite goal," he enthused. "There's never been a better one than that in English football!

"The team that we had during my time at Bolton though was just fantastic. We had some brilliant individuals like Willie Morgan, Neil Whatmore, Alan Gowling and Peter Reid and a really strong defence too, with Paul Jones and Sam Allardyce.

"That Bolton squad is definitely up there with the best sides that I've played in throughout my career."

Following his stint in the North West, Worthington made the move to the Midlands with Birmingham City where despite averaging a goal every three games, he was sent out on loan to both America and Sweden before arriving at Elland Road in the summer of 1982.

His time with the club was short but sweet as he moved onto pastures new just nine months later, but two goals on his debut against the club's Yorkshire rivals Sheffield Wednesday ensured that he was taken into the hearts of the Leeds faithful from the outset.

It wasn't to be the dream move he had hoped for however – with the club having suffered relegation to the Second Division in the previous season, the team were still adjusting to life in the lower leagues and Worthington himself had aspirations of playing top flight football once more.

"When I joined Leeds, it was a tough time after the successful era of Don Revie in the 1960s, so my time there didn't really measure up to those standards," he confessed.

"You've always got to be optimistic about any team that you join and at the time I just wanted to help Leeds get back up to where they belonged. I'd grown up watching them when they were at the top of English football, so I still enjoyed my time there."

In regards to today's game, Worthington admitted that although he thinks it to be hotly contested affair, he expects Wanderers to secure their first victory of the season with the help of the Reebok crowd.

"I've always been a great believer in winning your home games, so I've got to stay with that – I can't deflect away from what has stayed with me for all these years," he explained. "I'm going to go for a home win – perhaps 1-0 or 2-1 to Bolton."

SOCCER IN SAN FRANCISCO

The International Soccer School were in San Francisco recently as coaches Ian Worthington and Danny Clarke spent two weeks delivering coaching sessions the Wanderers way.

The first week was held with our link Paul McGallion and his Southern Alameda County Youth Soccer League Club - this was our third time over with SACYSL and it was great to see how the development of the players and coaches has moved forward.

The teams this season have had great successes, winning many leagues and pieces of silverware in different competitions all around the USA. The first week was extremely impressive and saw 40 players of mixed ability put through their paces by Ian and Danny.

The second week took place at Half Moon Bay, our first camp with long-time friend of the ISS, Cindy Turgeon. The training itself involved both girls and boys working all week, with the groups divided to include younger players in the morning and older ones in the afternoon.

Both Paul and Cindy spoke of their delight at the success of the programme, with the pair commenting on the fantastic quality of the courses.

They said: "The camps were well organised and the coaches delivered to a very high standard - their professional approach was not only to the players and coaches but also to the parents which was quite inspirational."

Lead coach Ian echoed their sentiments, adding: "The two weeks were very enjoyable - the players and coaches were so receptive to what we deliver in the ISS.

"This was my second year here in San Francisco after visiting last year with Dave and I can say it's great to see how the club has moved on and taken what we delivered last year on board, with this being shown in the results and development of the players."

With such an array of talent on show, the decision has been taken to invite 15 players to the World Grand Skills Final which will be taking place next month.

Nigel Clough's Derby County are the next visitors to the Reebok Stadium on Tuesday evening, kick-off 8pm.

The Rams, who are away at Millwall this afternoon, have won two, lost two and drawn one of their opening five games in the Sky Bet Championship alongside progressing to the third round of the Capital One Cup courtesy of victories over Oldham Athletic & Brentford.

Having finished tenth in the league standings last season and just seven points shy of the play-off positions, the Derby faithful will be hoping that their side can go one step further this campaign and make a return to the top flight.

They will however be hoping to avoid a repeat performance of their ill-fated 2007/08 Premier League campaign which saw them accumulate just 11 points and a solitary win over Newcastle United – the lowest tally in a single season since the introduction of three points for a victory.

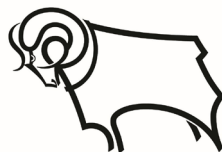

Since then the club have steadied the ship under the stewardship of Clough who moved to Pride Park back in 2009 after spending a decade as a player-manager with Burton Albion.

Having found themselves right in the mix for promotion in the latter stages of last season, Clough has brought in a number of reinforcements during the summer months to ensure that his side remain in contention yet again this term, with the likes of experienced Burnley goalkeeper Lee Grant and highly rated Tottenham Hotspur full-back Adam Smith joining the ranks.

Wanderers will be hoping to secure a third consecutive win against their opponents on home soil when the sides clash, with the Whites running out 2-0 winners at the Reebok in August of last year thanks to late goals from Chris Eagles and Kevin Davies.

Despite the Rams holding the upper hand in terms of total victories in this fixture with 59 in all competitions in comparison to Bolton's 45, Dougie Freedman's men will certainly take solace from the fact that they have only lost one of their last seven meetings with Derby.

To purchase tickets for this game, please visit Bolton Central on the club website. There will also be a special edition of the match day programme available to buy from various vendors around the stadium.
